

The dining room, the food service, at left. See, apply for them, Fieramosca owner says they're busy.

A disastrous spring and summer has hurt many city restaurants — but not all of them, apparently

The dining table is set with a crisp white tablecloth and a glass of sparkling water. The waiter is smiling. It's a good sign. In many ways, Fieramosca is a good sign. It's a restaurant that has been open for 15 years. It's a restaurant that has a reputation for being one of the best in the city. It's a restaurant that has a loyal following. It's a restaurant that has a history of excellence. It's a restaurant that has a future that is bright. It's a restaurant that has a story that is worth telling. It's a restaurant that has a name that is well-known. It's a restaurant that has a location that is convenient. It's a restaurant that has a menu that is diverse. It's a restaurant that has a service that is exceptional. It's a restaurant that has a reputation for being one of the best in the city. It's a restaurant that has a loyal following.
